

After two weeks of postponements, it was nice to get back to playing football, and the Egbertians kept up winning ways with a 1-0 win which was more comfortable than the scoreline suggests.

Playing against a strong wind in the first half, we failed to produce much going forward, although did go close to scoring but Dave Burnage fired over the bar from 8 yards out.

A lot more effort was asked for in the second half, and it was given, the greens dominating from start to finish. As always the defence were brilliant, as was skipper Matt Paxton in goal. Ricky Burnett and Steve Sipple began to dominate midfield, and chances galore arrived.

It was a surprise that we had to wait until mid way through the half to score. Adam McKinnon fired home a cracking free kick when everyone else including their keeper thought a cross was coming in.

We should have made it 2-0 on a couple of occasions, but Steve Sipple's drive was deflected onto the post, and Jason Francis was denied a deserved goal by a brilliant save from Leyton's keeper.

1-0 ending up being enough, and our record of only seven goals conceded in nine leagues is testament to the teams defending, from the forwards to the keeper. A good win against a Leyton team who coming into this game were the league's form side.
